FILIBUSTER SENDS ADMINISTRATION SHIP SUBSIDY BILL ON REEF

Measure Wrecked, Arguing Continues Until Formal Action Is Taken

By W. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The administration ship subsidy bill, stricken by the sweeping attacks of a coalition filibuster in the senate, appeared practically abandoned to defeat this afternoon.

A "gentlemen's agreement" was reached at noon between administration leaders and chief of the filibustering "battalion of death" to adjourn at 6 o'clock tonight for the purpose of considering bills on the senate calendar at tomorrow's session.

This decision to end night sessions and to take up legislation other than the subsidy, was interpreted by the filibusterers as a tacit admission that all efforts to adopt the amendment will be dropped.

The agreement later was adopted formally by unanimous consent, thus making it a matter of record.

The agreement was hailed by Senator Brookheart, Republican, Iowa, and Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, leader of the coalition forces, which staged the filibuster since last Monday as the "unconditional surrender" of the subsidy supporters.

The filibuster, however, continued today with Senator Brookheart yielding the floor long enough for Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, New Jersey, to make a short address. Brookheart was prepared to resume his 300,000 word speech on "co-operation" when Frelinghuysen concluded.

"The subsidy is dead," said Brookheart. "We are going to continue debate, however, until a motion is formally made to send the bill back to the commerce committee where it will die of old age. This probably will come tomorrow."

Inform President

The decision to abandon the subsidy fight was reached after Republican leaders, including Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, told President Harding there was no hope of enacting it at the present session. They were said to have told the chief executive that further continuation of the fight would endanger the passage of all other legislation.

Under the agreement the senate will adjourn tonight for the first time since the filibuster started. Under senate rules, this procedure automatically gives senators the opportunity to call for consideration any bill on the senate calendar and two hours are provided for these discussions.

The formal death blow probably will be given the subsidy tomorrow immediately after consideration of calendar bills is concluded.

Democrats to Battle On Ford's Candidacy

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—A battle over whether Henry Ford is to be indorsed for the presidency was expected this afternoon by delegates to the Democratic state convention which opened here today.

Two resolutions will be fought on the floor for the indorsement of Ford, it was learned. The resolutions were defeated last night at a meeting of the state central committee.

One resolution is said to point out, although Ford is neither an avowed Democrat nor Republican, his principles are solidly Democratic. The resolutions are said to favor Ford's endorsement because of his opposition to "Newberryism."

Northern Japan Is Threatened by Famine

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. — Northern Japan is threatened with a famine because of the abnormally heavy ice in the Bering sea, the United States weather bureau declared today. Cold weather resulting from the ice probably will reduce rice production, the bureau said, thereby cutting off the principal food supply of the Japanese people.

Income Tax Expert Now at City Hall To Help on Returns

TWENTY per cent more people living in Glendale are paying income taxes this year than last.

Charles L. Lewis of Los Angeles, representative of the internal revenue department, made this assertion this morning at the city hall. He said that it was too early to determine whether the percentage would be greater than 20 per cent or not.

An office on the second floor of the city hall is being utilized between the hours of 9 and 4 today, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by Mr. Lewis. He will return to Glendale on March 10 to remain here until returns are due on March 15.

Income tax returns do not have to be presented personally, according to Mr. Lewis. He stated that they could be sworn to by any notary public and mailed to Rex B. Goodcell, collector of internal revenue, Federal Building, Los Angeles.

Asked to Explain Fee, P. H. McCarthy Resigns

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—A sensation was caused in labor circles this afternoon when a telegram was received from P. H. McCarthy, former mayor, for years head of the Building Trades council, resigning his post of general adviser to the council.

McCarthy had been requested to appear before the Building Trades council to explain his acceptance of a $10,000 fee from the Pacific Gas & Electric company to fight the water and power act on the November ballot.

The former leader was in Washington and wired his resignation from there.

OPPOSES INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Investigating of the merger of the Morris and Armour packing companies will have to be conducted by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the house agriculture committee decided today in rejecting a resolution proposing any investigation of the proposed combine by the federal trade commission.

Uncle John Says:

Mary says she wishes there was a bus line passin' our house that would take her down to the Glendale stores, but then, she says, she'd lots rather walk than do the way a few folks she knows does. They go out of town to do their tradin' and then stand up on a crowded street car all the way home with their arms full of bundles. They're pushed around and stepped on after bein' jostled by the crowds in the big stores all day. "No," Mary says, "I'd rather walk a few blocks to the Glendale stores than come home a nervous wreck."

HIGHER STANDARDS NEED OF COUNTRY, CLAIMS SPEAKER

Senator George W. Cartwright Gives Views on Problems at Forum

"THE time has arrived when we must sober up and appeal to the intellect of the people of America in the settlement of the problems that vex the country today," declared Senator George W. Cartwright in his address at the forum meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce that was held in the Glendale Union high school last night. "Down through the centuries have persisted two blunders, one the idea that a man who succeeds must trample on his fellow man in his progress to the top, and the other that the differences between labor and capital are anything but a scientific problem."

"The world, so far, has failed to realize the necessity for leadership in industry, for men of vision who will lead their fellow men to higher standards and who will benefit the world through their ability to lead and to plan. The men who are the richest in America today are the servants of the people, through the distribution of their wealth in many channels, and they have reached their present position as leaders simply because they have vision, and with that vision, the realization that they must serve and care for the people who are lacking in vision."

Food and Tobacco

The speaker recounted a visit he had with Thomas A. Edison, when the great inventor told him that every penny he made in his business was turned right back into the business, to build more factories that employ more men and that help to feed thousands of workers in his own and allied factories. "And all that I get out of life, in the way of direct returns for the money I make," declared Edison, "is three meals a day and a chaw of tobacco."

"The rich man, no matter how wealthy, cannot eat more food or wear more clothes than the man who works for him on a salary," said Senator Cartwright, "and he won't try, because vision and good sense go together. God's great law of compensation works in industry as elsewhere, and the man who keeps his money working in industry serves the world.

"Whether a man has a talent as a singer, a soldier, a business man or a plumber, he must serve the world with that talent or it will be lost to him and he will never profit by the genius that has been given him."

Senator Cartwright related the plight of Russia, where the starvation that has swept the country came as the direct result of the policy adopted by the soviets of taking the workers' surplus to feed the drones, with the result that the surplus disappeared, and when the time of famine came

King Tut's Treasures To Remain in Egypt

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 23. — Practically all the treasures found in the 3000 year old tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, in the Valley of the Kings, will remain in Egypt, it was understood today.

Belief was expressed that when Lord Carnavon's exploration party proceeds with its work in the autumn, the charter from the Egyptian government will have been amended to provide that the ancient treasures remain in this country.

Egyptian officials are insisting that the mummy remain in the tomb where it was found, and it is likely that this will be the case.

Return of Property To Aliens Is Denied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—By a vote of 955 to 65, the house this afternoon defeated a proposal by Representative Rayburn, Democrat, of Texas, to return all property seized by the United States from alien enemies during the war. The proposal was supported by nearly all the Democrats.

The bill under consideration provides for the return of $10,000 worth of each trust now held by the alien property custodian.

COMES TO GLENDALE WITH $74.63 IN AUGUST, 1920, MAKES $50,000 YEARLY SINCE THEN

Incidentally, He Gets Married and Is Happy; Well, Why Shouldn't He Be? Who Is He? Read Description Given Below

By GIL A. COWAN

HOW would you like to make $50,000 a year? And never leave Glendale? And play safe? And depend on nothing but your natural ability? It has been done, folks, in the last two years by a young man just turned 26. His name is not for publication, but his story is absolutely true and no court in the country can convict him of fraud.

Today this youth can "cash in" for more than $100,000, representing the results of his work since August 5, 1920. That is what we call going some! Especially when the writer looks over his own meagre bank book.

A veteran of the world war, this youth we are telling you about, attended and graduated from a southern university in the summer of 1920. In three months' time he was in debt $500.

When a brother told him he could do well in Glendale, he picked up his traps, landed bag and baggage in this city on the afternoon of August 5, 1920, and began work the next day. He deposited $74.63 in the bank as his capital.

As an employe of a real estate firm he rented a house for them and pocketed his commission. The next day he sold a house. Ten days later he sold another house and so on, slowly gaining resources.

In partnership with a bank clerk he bought a lot on time. They sold it at a profit. From that initial profit he kept pyramiding—always safely, in his consideration—and today he owns property which if sold out for spot cash would clear him the $100,000.

Incidentally, he was married; and is happier here than any place he can imagine exists in this old world of ours. Speaking of opportunity, as it has knocked at his door, he said to me this morning:

"I know that I could have made double what I did, had I risked losing it all. However, my policy was to play 'safe'. When I might have mortgaged everything I had and made $70,000 in one deal it didn't appeal to me as right. So I am satisfied with the results obtained. Fifty thousand a year ought to be enough for me if I can keep up the pace."

There is what the writer considers the most remarkable story in Glendale today. A doctor has amassed a fortune in five years. Another realtor has staged a comeback since the war that has netted him equally as much as the young man, but the latter had practically no business experience.

Good judgment, sincerity, reinvestment in Glendale, that is the formula!

FOOTBALL TACKLE STOPS ROBBERY

Russell Tummel Recalls His Education at Glendale School, Foils Thug

Football tactics learned by Russell R. Tummel when he was captain of the Glendale Union High school football team, in 1919, enabled him last Thursday, in Phoenix, Ariz., to foil a hold-up man and land him behind bars. This is the way it happened:

Young Tummel had left his hotel, shortly before 2 o'clock in the morning, and was on his way to the station to take the train for his home, which is at 1504 South Brand boulevard—when suddenly a tall shadow loomed out of an alley, revolver in hand, and ordered him to "Put 'em up!"

Tummel, who was carrying a grip in each hand, paused for a moment and stood there without complying, as he surveyed his assailant. The fellow was about six feet in height, well built, and had an ugly, determined face.

"Put 'em up—and be quick about it!" he snarled, poking the heavy weapon against his victim's chest.

Tummel, keeping his eyes fixed on the bandit, slowly lowered the grips to the ground. Then, quick as a flash, he grabbed the man about the ankles in what is known as a 'tumble tackle,' sending him sprawling.

Before the bandit could recover his footing, Tummel followed his advantage, rushing in and kicking the revolver out of reach.

Then followed a rough-and-tumble, catch-as-catch-can wrestling bout, unrefereed. In the end, the Glendale athlete was victorious, and when a night watchman appeared he found Tummel sitting upon his vanquished assailant, holding him gently but firmly by the windpipe.

The bandit is now in a Phoenix prison and Russell Tummel is home in Glendale.

More Colonial Troops Enter Ruhr District

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—More French Colonial troops have entered the Ruhr, according to a statement issued this afternoon by the German embassy.

"Colored troops of the seventh French Colonial regiment," the statement said, "have entered Verden, Velbert and Kupferdreh and have there been billetted in private homes."

SPECIAL BILL TO PAY FOR CLOTHES

Postal Clerks Live in Hope Of Reimbursement for Damaged Suits

The receipt of a letter from Congressman Walter F. Lineberger has raised the hopes of Assistant Postpaster George Hallett and E. F. Holmes that they will some day be reimbursed for the clothes that were destroyed by the sulphuric acid that was poured in the boxes at the Glendale postoffice some time ago by William W. Barron.

Congressman Linebarger writes to Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson that there is no provision in the postal laws that will permit the payment for the injured clothes, and the short time that remains of the present session will prevent the matter being taken up with any prospect of success now, but he promises to introduce a special bill in the next session that will ask the appropriation of funds to pay the two postoffice employes for the damage they suffered in handling the acid-covered mail.

Plan Filibuster

It is planned to instigate a filibuster to delay any other legislation that may be favored by the administration until Hallett and Holmes get the money to pay for their damaged clothes, and if this fails Senator William E. Borah of Idaho is to be asked to introduce a resolution urging that the matter be incorporated in the agenda of the next economic conference he intends to ask President Harding to summon. Another alternative suggested is to include the price of the clothes in the bill fathered by Senator O. Bursum of New Mexico seeking the payment of back pensions to veterans and their widows, but the chances there are regarded as slim, as Secretary Albert B. Fall will be out of the cabinet before long and Bursum will have lost his pull around the White House.

Captain Jackson has absolutely refused to incorporate the bill for the clothes in his expense account, claiming that he would waste more time than the blamed clothes were worth before he got through answering enquiries from a lot of third assistant deputy postmaster generals.

So Lineberger's proposed bill is regarded as the only hope for the payment of the claim against the government.

U. S. INSISTS CHINA TAKE ACTION OVER FATAL SHOOTING

Government Sends Protest As Result of Death of American Citizen

By HARRY L. ROGERS
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In one of the sternest protests since the Lusitania notes to Germany the United States government has made six specific demands upon the government of China as a result of the murder of Charles Coltman, an American citizen, at Kalgan gate of the great wall of China, it was learned officially today.

Coltman was fatally shot by Chinese soldiers while seated in an automobile beside American Consul Sokobin, and it is regarded as a mere accident that the consul was not hit also.

The six demands made by this government upon the Peking government are:

First—That the Chinese government make a formal apology to the United States.

Second—That the Tutung of Chahar, the region in which Kalgan is located, make formal apology to Consul Sokobin.

Third—That the responsible officials, presumably Chief of Staff Meng and his aide, be removed from office with a pledge that they will never again be given official employment.

Under Chinese Law

Fourth—That responsible officials in charge of the situation at the time of the shooting be tried under Chinese law to determine their exact responsibility, and, if found guilty, that they be punished in accordance with Chinese law.

Fifth—That the family of Coltman be indemnified.

Sixth—That there be a clear understanding that Americans in the pursuit of their legitimate business may transport silver about China independently of embargoes and local restrictions.

Since the case first was taken up early last December, there have been numerous exchanges between the state department and the Chinese foreign office, but thus far China has failed to give satisfaction. Officials here feel that the killing was without a single palliating circumstance and they are determined to push it with the utmost vigor until China makes satisfactory amends.

Americans in China place responsibility for the shooting upon the Tutung Chang-Hsi-Yuan regime.

Coltman had attempted to pass through the gate in an automobile with a quantity of silver, intending to make extensive purchases in Mongolia. In this action he was supported by the American consul, who insisted that under treaty rights American nationals were entitled to carry on trade, and that if they had the right to trade, they also had the right to transport the funds necessary for business.

The shooting followed, with the consul sitting beside Coltman in the machine. It is asserted the soldiers were fully aware that they were firing upon an American official and an American citizen.

Park Injunction Case Postponed to Mar. 8

Whether or not an injunction should be issued by the superior court to restrain the city of Glendale from drawing any warrants for payments on the Verdugo Park and thirty-three acres adjoining the water works on San Fernando road will not be considered by Judge Arthur Keetch until March 8. A continuance of the case was secured this morning by City Attorney Hartley Shaw. The petition for the injunction was filed by George A. Montgomery of 500 North Kenneth road, who is reported to be an annexationist.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION

CLEVELAND, Fe. 23.—A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed this afternoon in federal court here today against the Cleveland Discount company, a Delaware corporation, with offices in many cities, and for which receivers have been appointed. The petition was filed by Walter Kennery, H. J. McNeill and W. C. Baker, former salesmen.

Secretary Wallace Favors Lenroot and Anderson Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. A strong recommendation that congress pass the Lenroot-Anderson bill instead of the Capper bill for relief of American farmers was made today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a letter to Representative Anderson, Republican, Minnesota.

"To offer the Capper bill as a rural credits bill or a substitute for the Lenroot-Anderson bill," Wallace declared, "would give the farmers of the nation the best of reasons for feeling that in reply to their request for bread they had been offered a stone."

Wallace's letter revealed a distinct split between himself and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Mellon, a week ago, severely criticized the Lenroot-Anderson bill and expressed the hope that it would not pass congress. Today Wallace came out with an endorsement of it.

POLICE IN HUNT FOR 'PONZI NO. 2'

Accused Bank Wrecker May Commit Suicide, Says Brother-in-Law

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Joseph B. Marcino, 28 year old bank wrecker extraordinary, whose embezzlements total nearly half a million dollars, was hunted today in half a dozen places—in Chicago, in various parts of the United States, in Mexico and at the ports of South America. Marcino was known to be a prodigious traveler.

Hints that he might kill himself made to his brother-in-law, Abraham Goldman, of Chicago, were discussed by detectives and operatives of the William J. Burns International Detective agency that are seeking him. The hints came in a letter in which "Ponzi II" outlined his breath-taking financial career and shouldered full responsibility for his failures.

Some High Lights

Here are the shining spots in the life of Joseph B. Marcino, who rose from immigrant to a "Ponzi No. 2" as contained in Burns Detective Agency records:

First — Born in Milan, Italy, in 1895. Brought to America as a child.

Second—Gets his first job at 16 as a barber in a Chicago hotel. Learns business listening to salesmen, brokers and bankers whose hair he snips.

Third—Becomes a life insurance salesman in 1914. Organizes own company.

BULLETIN

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Feb. 23. —The thirteenth victim of the fire which destroyed a combination brick and frame rooming house early today was brought from the ruins shortly before noon by firemen and identified as Edgar Munyon, 18, son of Mrs. Viella Munyon, another victim. Firemen believe there are five more bodies in the ruins.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Feb. 23—Twelve charred bodies have been recovered from the ruins of a two-story brick and frame building which was destroyed by fire early today.

It is believed that fifteen of the twenty roomers who were trapped on the second floor of the burning building have perished. Six of these are believed to have been children. Firemen this morning continued digging in the debris in an effort to find the remaining victims of the holocaust.

The dead: Mrs. Elisha Colston, Violet Colston, 6; Vernon Colston, 4; Leon Brown, Mrs. Gussie Brown, his wife, his four children, Katherine 7, Arthur 6, Marguerite 5 and Lea, Jr. 3. Three unidentified persons. One of the unidentified dead was later identified as Mrs. Viella Munyon, 63, housekeeper for the Brown family.

Firemen are now making a check of the occupants of the rooming house and have accounted for all those in the list of dead and missing. Many narrowly escaped with their lives by jumping from the windows as the flames enveloped the building and cut off escape by the stairs.

The Brown family, all of whom perished, occupied three rooms at the southwest corner of the building on the upper floor. Under this spot firemen recovered six bodies.

Origin of the fire has not been determined, but it is believed to have resulted from spontaneous combustion augmented by oil in the garage which occupied the ground floor of the building.

Relatives of missing occupants of the building stood around the ruins throughout the morning in anxious silence as firemen dug beneath wrecked motor cars and other rubbish to recover the bodies.

Building Soon Burned

An early passer-by who discovered the flames and rang a fire alarm and probably saved the lives of those who did not perish. None of the occupants appeared to have been awakened by the flames and in a short time it is believed all

Stevenson & Schoebe Employed for Campaign; Planning Program

An intensive membership campaign will be put on by the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce on March 1st. This was decided at one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the past several months held at Occidental Commons last night. The campaign will be under the direction of Stevenson & Schoebe of Los Angeles, who make a specialty of that line of work.

The meeting was called to order promptly at 6:30 by President O. J. Root, who was acting as toastmaster at the banquet served at the Commons. He stated the main business of the meeting was to decide whether or not the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce was to meet a lingering death or be revived by an enthusiastic campaign for membership.

In order to learn the opinion of representative business men present, President Root called upon a dozen of those present for an expression. Each and every man said he would give the campaign his undivided support. The chairman then introduced J. O. Stevenson, who outlined his plan in full. The question of accepting the plan of Stevenson & Schoebe was then put to a vote and carried unanimously.

Campaign Opens March 1

This firm expects to start bright and early March 1 and will conduct a lively campaign through the month. By the first of April, they confidently expect to have every business man and practically every citizen in Eagle Rock on the Chamber of Commerce roll. The dues will be $12 a year.

The Chamber of Commerce has a number of projects which they hope to push to a successful conclusion as soon as the campaign closes. Some of these are the establishment of an up-town express office in the city; a telegraph office; better car service and other utilities that will be of benefit to the city and the citizens. These matters will be worked out in detail within the next month.

HIGHER STANDARDS NEED OF COUNTRY, CLAIMS SPEAKER

there was no reserve to draw on. Russia now, however, he declared, has seen the light and the next few years will witness an unprecedented year of prosperity and growth in that country.

Problem of Wages

Dealing with the relations of capital and labor, the speaker asserted that the wage question can never be settled by force. Strikes, lockouts and violence will never, he claimed, solve the problem of wages, and until the wage question is solved there can be no guarantee given that America's existence will continue. If wages are too high, he asserted, industry cannot compete, and if they are too low the purchasing power of the worker is diminished and business is crippled.

As a solution, he advocated that wages be made sufficiently low to permit industry to compete with its strongest rivals, and still to leave capital enough surplus to invest in the expansion of the business. Prosperity, he added, comes not from high wages, but from big production.

Owing to the illness of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard the musical program, as originally arranged, was changed, Mrs. Eva K. Ghrist volunteering to play two piano selections which were warmly received.

Community Singing

Mayor Spencer Robinson, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, sang a vocal solo, and the community singing was led by Alexander Stewart, who urged the audience to attend the community "sing" which is to be held in the Glendale Union high school auditorium on Monday night.

President Smith turned the meeting over to Cameron Thom, who in turn called on Albert D. Pearce to introduce the speaker of the evening. The speaker's table was decorated with the silver cup won by Glendale at the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, and the designer, L. W. Chobe, was given a round of applause when he stood up to acknowledge the compliments paid him by President Smith.

SUMMIT HEIGHTS PLEASE PUBLIC SEEKING LOTS

H. C. Warren Reports Sale Of Nine Homesites at Eagle Rock Recently

H. C. Warren, who has the exclusive selling privileges of the Summit Heights tract, Eagle Rock, says he has made nine sales in the last ten days from this property. The lots run in price from $750 to $3500.

At the present time, there is considerable building activity on the tract, which comprises seven or eight acres. One of the finest homes now going up is the Rev. Fisk home. Dr. George F. Newhall is planning the erection of a $10,000 home on the lot next to the Fisk residence.

The tract lies at a high elevation north of Occidental college and affords a wonderful view of Eagle Rock from all angles. The company has expended $5000 in improvements. A fine, graveled road circles the hill and gives one a beautiful panoramic view of the city. Gas, water and electricity is now on the ground.

Mr. Warren says that the lots are selling themselves, principally because of the nearness to the school and the beautiful view afforded.

Matters of considerable importance to the Eagle Rock realtors are expected to come before the meeting tonight. This will be held at the city hall and the meeting will be called to order promptly at 7:30. All real estate dealers are invited to be present.

REV. WEATHERALL RESIGNS FROM PASTORATE

Rev. B. B. Weatherall, for the past five years pastor of the Eagle Rock Presbyterian church, has tendered his resignation, to take effect immediately.

The members of the church express keen regret in the loss of their pastor.

Parents of Slayer's Victim See Hanging

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 23.—While the mother and father of his victim looked on, Clemente Apolinar, 32, was hanged shortly before noon today in the county jail yard here for the murder of Theodore Bernhard, 14, on August 16, 1921.

Apolinar went to his death calmly. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bernhard, parents of the slain boy, occupied front row positions at the execution. Both gazed calmly at the man who slew their son as he marched from the death cell to the gallows.

When the prison physician pronounced Apolinar dead, Mrs. Bernhard said:

"At last he has paid with his life for killing my little boy. I thought for a while I would never live to realize this great hope—to see that monster die. Although my baby is gone, I know that the man who took him from me has paid. I am satisfied."

Social Events

With Mrs. Griffin

The first of a series of all-day meetings of the Nimble Finger club of the Daughters of Veterans, held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Griffin, 633 West Alexander street, proved to be a very successful and enjoyable affair.

In the morning two comforters were finished and other sewing done. At noon a Spanish luncheon was served for thirty-five. And in the afternoon a fine program was given.

The whole house bloomed with Californian golden poppies and wild mustard.

The program, patriotic in nature, consisted of a series of questions and answers on Washington and Lincoln, arranged by Mrs. Agnes Richardson, patriotic instructor, D. of V.; a Washington-Lincoln contest, arranged by Mrs. Griffin, the prize of a standard pie plate being won by Miss Esther Wilson; another contest, the prize of a clothespin apron, being won by Mrs. Margaret Hibbert.

Mrs. Pearl Moore gave several very enjoyable readings; Misses Audrey Hall and Leona Hibbert rendered three piano solos, and Mrs. Moore and Miss Hibbert sang two duets.

The members of the club then gathered on the lawn, where several snapshots were taken.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Susie Peck, Mrs. Alice Sheldon and Miss Esther wilson.

Sidney H. Collins of 360 Kenneth road is being held in the city jail of Los Angeles without bail, following an automobile accident yesterday in Los Angeles.

Mrs. D. S. McDonald of 136 West Pico street is alleged to have been struck down and fatally injured by Mr. Collins' car on Figueroa street. It is reported that he attempted to flee following the accident and was pursued more than a block by a motorcyele officer.

Mrs. McDonald was taken to the Receiving Hospital, but died within a few minutes from a basal skull fracture.

Frank Henry of 1428 West Fifty-Eighth street, who was driving in another car, was arrested when he attempted to exonerate Mr. Collins. It was asserted that Mr. Henry had a quart bottle of liquor in his machine. He was charged with violating the Wright Act.

FRENCH DECLARE STATE OF SIEGE

Regulate Public Conduct of Germans; Threats of Reprisals Result

BOCHUM, Germany, Feb. 23.—A strict state of siege was proclaimed here by the French today to prevent disorders. A proclamation was issued regulating the public conduct of the citizens.

Germans were warned to not attempt to carry out their plans for indignation meetings to protest against the shooting of several Germans on Thursday, when French troops fired into a German crowd.

Germans are deeply stirred over the shooting and open threats of reprisals led to the declaration of martial law. Germans arrested here will be arraigned before a military tribunal instead of civil courts.

SPEAKER SCORES CIVIC LETHARGY

Urges Election of Men Who Have Determination to Enforce Statutes

About seventy-five members and friends of the Broadway Methodist church, south, gathered in the Sunday school room of their church at Broadway and Cedar street last night in a get-together affair, and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by every one present. The program was under the direction of Mrs. Eva K. Ghrist, with Rev. D. M. Barr, the pastor, acting as toastmaster. The audience sang several spirited songs, after which Mrs. Matilda Rohr of Los Angeles sang three solos; a number of instrumental selections were played by Mrs. Ghrist on the piano, and several numbers were played on the saxophone by Mrs. Rollins, accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Knight.

Juvenile Criminals

Wiley J. Phillips of Los Angeles was the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Phillips said in part: "I am no pessimist, but, after giving sober thought to some of the conditions affecting our country at the present time, I must confess that my mind is in a most serious mood. There is entirely too much lethargy on the part of Christian people. Do you know that there were over 1900 boys and girls arrested in Los Angeles in 1922 and handled by the courts, charged with various crimes? Their parents and the church were largely to blame for it. Only men known to have the determination and desire to have our laws enforced should be elected to office. But how can that be done when such a small per cent of the voters takes the trouble to go to the polls on election day? You can rest assured that all the 'wets' and riff-raff, however, will always cast their votes. At the last general election there were several millions of church members and even ministers who never went near the polls.

Crime is Reduced

"In Los Angeles county last year there was more than one divorce granted to every two marriages, in Denver the divorces split even with the marriages, while in Chicago there was a divorce for every two marriages. That means that our homes are imperiled, and a nation can be no safer than its homes. Our prohibition law has worked wonders and proved a great benefit, but it has not accomplished as much as we had hoped it would. However, even with a somewhat lax enforcement in some places it has reduced crime over the country about eighty per cent. In Los Angeles there are 300 less blind pigs now than there were when there were 200 saloons; in San Francisco there are 3000 less than when there were 2500 saloons. But there is still much work to be done, and every Christian should arouse from his lethargy on election day and see to it that only such men are elected to office as will faithfully enforce the laws.

"Unless a man's religion is strong enough for him to take his ballot to the polls and put it in the ballot box, it is too weak to be of service to him before the judgment bar of God."

A committee of women served refreshments of ice cream and cake.

COMPANY OFFERS CHOICE PROPERTY

Exclusive Tract, With Full Bearing Orange Trees Is Subdivided for Sale

With the opening of Reynolds' Kenneth road tract, announced by F. C. Wolter, of the Wolter Real Estate Company, exclusive agents for the development, another section of the very finest property in Glendale is made available for purchase in lot sizes, at attention-compelling prices.

The tract, which has a frontage of over 900 feet on Kenneth road, and comprises twenty acres of choice, full-bearing valencia orange trees, commands a superb view of the countryside in every direction.

Located on high ground swept the year around by cool, fragrant breezes, it runs from Kenneth road on the north to Eighth street on the south, with Highland avenue less than a block east and Grand View avenue two blocks west.

In Natural Cradle

Lying as it does in a great natural cradle whose headpost is the green Verdugo hills and whose footboard is the hazy Hollywood-Griffith park range, the parents of this healthy infant are satisfied that its growth will be one of the wonders of a wonder city.

With but fifty-six lots for sale, each one 60x203 feet, and with an average of from eighteen to twenty-seven fine, mature orange trees per lot, it is a certainty, says Mr. Wolter, that it will be the quick buyers who will reap the early benefits to be realized here.

Prices run from $2000 up, and ten per cent down, the balance drawing six per cent interest, is all that is required to own one of these fine lots, Mr. Wolter states. These prices include all improvements, which are being rushed to completion.

These improvements include water, gas, electricity and two streets connecting Kenneth road and Eighth street, one to be known as Greynolds street, the other a continuation of the present Norton street.

Reasonable Restrictions

That this section may remain in keeping with the other fine property along exclusive Kenneth road, reasonable restrictions have been set, of $7500 on Kenneth road and $5000 on the inside lots.

"Beautiful Kenneth road" is a name that has long been applied to this stretch of superb home sites. "And," says Mr. Wolter, "the name tells the story. We don't have to use sales arguments to sell these lots. All we have to do is let the public know they are for sale.

"What Los Feliz road and Wilshire boulevard are to Hollywood, Kenneth road is to Glendale. The neighborhood is unexcelled, the view is magnificent, the air is a tonic. To home-builder and investor alike, we state that we are offering something in Reynolds' Kenneth road tract that requires but to be seen to be bought—and our office is open daily at the tract office, 838 Kenneth road."

SPORTS

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Several of the teams of the Pacific Coast baseball league already are at their preliminary training camps, and within the next week the personnel of the entire eight clubs on the roster will be hard at work. Now watch out for yarns about the marvellous finds that have been made in the ranks of the bushers. And then two months or more from now see if you can remember them.

Sounds kind of funny to read about a fellow breaking a skating record and, at the same time about fifty miles away another chap setting up new figures in the 100 yard swim. All of which simply goes to show that with freezing plants on the one hand and warming devices on the other, the season of the year no longer cuts any ice in sports.

There are not a few ring followers who are of the opinion that Pancho Villa, the American Flyweight champion is going to be one of the luminaries of the fistic game in other divisions beside the one in which he now is performing. Boys like this take on weight as they grow older and there is no reason why a natural fighter like the Filipino should not be able to hold his own as he passes up through one weight division into another. This youngster has proven that he has considerable of a wallop in his glove, which, after all, is about the best asset a pugilist can have.

The old golfing geeks who are over fifty years of age are going to have a special tournament all to themselves at the Coronado country club. To be exact they must have past their fifty-fifth birthday. The date on which these youngsters will gambol on the green has been set for March 5-6-7 and betting already is in order as to how many of them can stand the terrific three day strain. The entrants have begun to clamor for some one to supervise the "other fellows' scores," it being evident there is some mistrust as to the mathematical ability of the competitors.

It quite frequently happens that the dub performers at wrestling can furnish more fun and excitement than the ultra scientific. Two such dubs, of the heavyweight persuasion recently performed in San Francisco. They spent the greater part of their time losing their tempers and alternately throwing each other bodily out of the ring. The match hadn't been going long before all those in the first row of seats at the ringside had removed themselves to a safer distance. To have a 200 pound man suddenly dropped on your head or into your lap is disquieting to say the least. Notwithstanding their inferiority as wrestlers, its dollars to doughnuts another match between them would fill the house—not as wrestlers but entertainers.

High School Athletes Postpone Track Meet

The first high school track meet of the season, which was to have been held tomorrow, has been postponed. Glendale Union High school is ready but San Fernando High school has not concluded its basketball season yet.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Milwaukee—Ernie Goozman stopped Frankie Frisco, six rounds.

At Brooklyn—Tommy Robson, Malden, Mass., got decision over Frankie Fleming, Staten Island, 12 rounds; Johnny Gannon, Jersey City, got decision over Patsy Flannigan, New York, 12 rounds.

At McKeesport, Pa.—Jimmy Jones, Youngstown, Ohio, gave Johnny Ward of Buffalo a terrific beating in ten rounds. Newspaper decisions favored Jones by a margin on points.

SPORTS CHATTER
By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The ability of Pacific Coast college track and field teams is well known in the East—note, for example, the two successive wins of the University of California in the I four A championships. That the University of Washington, University of California and Stanford University in past years have produced eight-oared crews competent to give the best eastern college eights a real race is also well known.

Now comes a new endeavor on the part of Coast colleges to invade eastern collegiate diamonds. For the first time in the history of college baseball, a Pacific Coast college nine will be seen in the East this summer. The University of Washington baseball team will be the one to show the caliber of Coast college baseball in the East.

What is more to the point, the Washingtonians are out to meet the leading eastern teams, and arrangements have already been completed to play the Yale team, Penn State and the University of Michigan. Negotiations are under way for other games and it is possible that others of the leading eastern colleges will accommodate the Coast boys with games.

The team will leave Seattle on May 23, on the conclusion of the Pacific Coast Conference schedule, and will go direct to Fargo, N. D., where they are to meet the University of North Dakota team, on June 4. The next game at present scheduled is against Penn State on June 8, and on June 13 the Yale nine will be their opponents at New Haven, Conn. Two games will be played against the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor on June 15 and 16. There are some dates in between those scheduled and the gaps will be filled up just as quickly as possible.

The University of Washington team was one of the strongest diamond nines on the Pacific Coast last year, and with ten of the veterans back it is sure of having another brilliant team. This will be the first time that a Coast college has invaded the East, and the experiment will be closely watched by other Coast teams. There is no reason why the Washington aggregation should not make a good showing in the East and come out of the frays with just as good reputations as college teams from the Coast have won in other branches of sport.

Three of last year's pitchers are back at Washington, and each made a great record for himself last year. Setzer, Harper and Liston are the three, the first two being good right-handers and Liston the southpaw. Marriott, Lewis and Gardner are veteran outfielders, while Barrett, first base; Welts, second, and Baker, third, are the infielders. Coach Tubby Graves is minus a shortstop, but there is a supply of good prospective material for this job. The tenth veteran is Miles, who is a good catcher.

It is not yet definite that all these veterans will make the trip. There are plenty of aspirants for every position on this year's team, and the showing during the coming Coast conference schedule by the men of the squad will be taken into consideration before any definite team is announced for the eastern invasion.

GRAPPLER WANTS GLENDALE MATCH

Pergandos Issues Challenge To Hackenschmidt for Wrestling Bout

Louis Pergandos, light heavyweight wrestler of Boston, Mass., was in Glendale yesterday looking for some one to put on a match between himself and John Hackensmidt, who won from Perman here recently. Pergandos challenged the winner at the time of the bout, but so far has not had his offer accepted, and he is now camping on Hackensmidt's trail in an effort to get him into a ring for a bout, any time or any place.

Pergandos is among the top-notch grapplers at his weight, having wrestled Ad Santel a few weeks ago, and he will appear at the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles next Wednesday night as one of the main attractions.

He will leave for Portland, Ore., about the middle of next month, but he declares that he would go with an easier mind if he could take the Glendale mat artist's scalp along with him.

DOG RACE TITLE CHANGES OWNERS

Smoky Gaston Huskies Win From Champion's Team In Hard Drive

ASHTON, Idaho, Feb. 23. — Smoky Gaston of West Yellowstone is the new dog derby champion of America.

The brilliant driver sent his huskies across the line 14 seconds ahead of Tud Kent, champion of 1920 and 1921, in the classic derby yesterday. His time for the 25 miles was two hours nine minutes and 38 seconds. Kent's time last year was 2 hours and 35 minutes.

Olcott Zarn, 15-year-old school boy, was third. The trail was soft, due to warm weather. Gaston will have his name engraved on the derby cup and receive a cash prize of $600.

Club Owners to Fire Disgruntled Players

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. — The unconditional release of John "Stuffy" McInnis, Cleveland Indian, is the beginning of an organized campaign by the club owners against dissatisfied players, according to reports current here today. In support of this claim, it is pointed out that McInnis would be of value to six clubs, namely, the Dodgers, the St. Louis Cardinals, the Chicago White Sox, the Boston Red Sox, the Phillies and the Boston Braves, yet all of them waived claim to him.

INDIANS TANGLE WITH AUTO NINE

L. A. Studebaker Team Will Meet Glendale Team in Sunday Game

How fast can a Studebaker run? Glendale baseball fans are going to find out Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the home diamond, corner of Park avenue and San Fernando road, when the local Indians will cross bats with the Studebaker nine from Los Angeles.

According to the dope, it is going to be some keen contest, with a few six-cylinder plays on the part of the automobile advertising crew and a lot of wild stuff on the part of the Glendale Indians.

Yea, verily, the Indians lost last Sunday, but Manager Bell believes he finally has a lineup that will take the scalps of other Southern California semi-pro clubs, and all he needs now is a little support from the bleachers.

All right, Glendale, let's go!

P. S.—(Pray Scalp'm). If the Indians don't win the editor says he will charge them for running the box score next Monday.

'Bad Blood' Talk Stirs Fans Over Greb and Tunney Battle Tonight

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—A judicious quantity of bad blood having been spilled about the premises, either sincerely, or with an eye to the effect on the percentage of the house, Harry Greb and Gene Tunney will meet tonight in Madison Square Garden for the light heavyweight champion of America. The proceeding will be viewed by a capacity house, and, in consequence, it is presumed that many of the merry villagers will purchase their enjoyment from the whispering fraternity many yards from the box office.

The speculators have yet to fail in gaining possession of choice seats for any big attraction at the Garden, and in point of public interest, the Greb-Tunney enterprise is as big as Lake Michigan's waist line.

Indeed, certain small-time friends of Tunney have become so exercised over the event as to write threatening lettrs to Greb and his wife.

They will weigh at 175 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but that is only a formality. Both are well under the limit.

The Ladies' Aid of the Casa Verdugo Methodist church will hold a cooked food sale, Saturday, the 24th, at the Jewel City Plumbing Co., 526 E. Broadway; noon lunch served.—Advertisement 2-23-23

The MUCKER

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright 1921 by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Darkness had fallen when the little party commenced to resaddle their ponies, and in the midst of their labors there came a rude and disheartening interruption. Billy had kept either the Chinaman or Bridge constantly upon watch toward the direction in which Rozales' men lolled smoking in the dark, and it was the crack of Bridge's carbine which awoke the Americans to the fact that though the border lay but a few miles away they were still far from safety.

As he fired Bridge turned in his saddle and shouted to the others to make for the shelter of the ranchhouse.

"There are two hundred of them," he cried. "Run for cover."

Billy and the Clark brothers leaped to their saddles and spurred to the point where Bridge sat pumping lead into the advancing enemy. Mason and Mr. Harding hurried Barbara to the questionable safety of the ranchhouse. The Mexican flolowed them, and Bridge ordered Sing back to assist in barricading the doors and windows, while he and Billy and the Clark boys held the bandits in momentary check.

Falling back slowly and firing constantly as they came the four approached the house while Pesita and his full band advanced cautiously after them. They had almost reached the house when Bridge lunged forward from his saddle. The Clark boys had dismounted and were leading their ponies inside the house. Billy alone noted the wounding of his friend. Without an instant's hesitation he slipped from his saddle ran back to where Bridge lay and lifted him in his arms. Bullets were pattering thick about them. A horseman far in advance of his fellows galloped forward with a drawn saber to cut down the gringos.

Billy, casting an occasional glance behind, saw the danger in time to meet it——just, in fact, as the weapon was cutting through the air toward his head. Dropping Bridge and dodging to one side he managed to escape the cut, and before the swordsman could recover Billy had leaped to his pony's side and seizing the rider about the waist dragged him to the ground.

"Rozales!" he exclaimed, and struck the man as he had never struck another in all his life, with the full force of his mighty muscles backed by his great weight, with clenched fist full in the face.

There was a spurting of blood and a splintering of bone, and Captain Guillermo Rozales sank senseless to the ground, his career of crime and rapine ended forever.

Again Billy lifted Bridge in his arms and this time he succeeded in reaching the ranchhouse without opposition though a little crimson stream trickled down his left arm to drop upon the face of his friend as he deposited Bridge upon the floor of the house.

All night the Pesitas circled the lone ranchhouse. All night they poured their volleys into the adobe walls and through the barricaded windows. All night the little band of defenders fought gallantly for their lives; but as day approached the futility of their endeavors was borne in upon them, for of the nine one was dead and three wounded, and the numbers of their assailants seemed undiminished.

Billy Byrne had been lying all night upon his stomach before a window firing out into the darkness at the dim forms which occasionally showed against the dull dead background of the moonless desert.

Presently he leaped to his feet and crossed the floor to the room in which the horses had been placed.

"Everybody fire toward the rear of the house as fast as they can," said Billy. "I want a clear space for my getaway.

"Where you goin'?" asked one of the Clark brothers.

"North," replied Billy, "after some of Funston's men on the border."

"But they won't cross," said Mr. Harding. "Washington won't let them."

"They gotta," snapped Byrne, "an' they will when they know there's an American girl here with a bunch of Dagos yappin' around."

"You'll be killed," said Price Clark. "You can't never get through."

"Leave it to me," replied Billy. "Just get ready an' open that back door when I give the word, an' then shut it again in a hurry when I've gone through."

He led a horse from the side room, and mounted it.

"Open her up, boes!" he shouted, and "S'long everybody!"

Price Clark swung the door open. Billy put spurs to his mount and threw himself forward flat against the animal's neck. Another moment he was through and a rattling fusiliade of shots proclaimed the fact that his bold feat had not gone unnoted by the foe.

The little Mexican pony shot like a bolt from a crossbow out across the level desert. The rattling of carbines only served to add speed to its frightened feet. Billy sat erect in the saddle, guiding the horse with his left hand and working his revolver methodically with his right.

At a window behind him Barbara Harding stood breathless and spellbound until he had disappeared into the gloom of the early morning darkness to the north then she turned with a weary sigh and resumed her place beside the wounded Bridge whose head she bathed with cool water, while he tossed in the delirium of fever.

The first streaks of daylight were piercing the heavens, the Pesitistas were rallying for a decisive charge, the hopes of the little band of besieged were at low ebb when from the west there sounded the pounding of many hoofs.

"Villa," moaned Westcott Clark, hopelessly. "We're done for now, sure enough. He must be comin' back from his raid on the border."

In the faint light of dawn they saw a column of horsemen deploy suddenly into a long, thin line which galloped forward over the flat earth, coming toward them like a huge, relentless engine of destruction.

The Pesititstas were watching, too. They had ceased firing and sat in their saddles forgetful of their contemplated charge.

The occupants of the ranchhouse were gathered at the small windows.

"What's them?" cried Mason—"them things floating over 'em."

"They're guidons!" exclaimed Price Clark "—the guidons of a United States cavalry regiment. See 'em! See 'em! God! but they look good?"

There was a wild whoop from the lungs of the advancing cavalrymen. Pesita's troops answered it with a scattering volley, and a moment later the Americans were among them in that famous revolver charge which is now history.

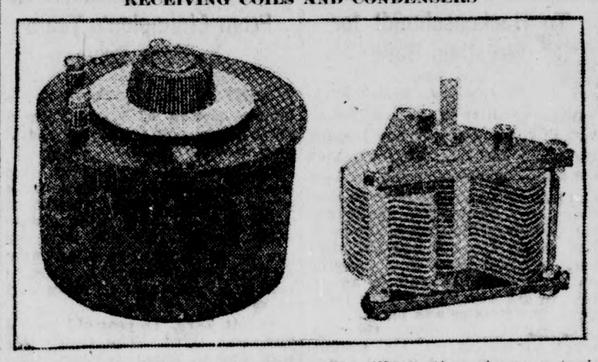
RADIO DEVELOPMENT

By LIEUT JOHN R. IRWIN
U. S. Air Service (Reserve)

RECEIVING COILS AND CONDENSERS



The coils used in the receiving apparatus are very simple in construction, being usually wound within a single layer of wire on a bakelite, pasteboard or other insulating tube. The wire is usually covered with an insulation of silk or cotton, both solid and stranded wire are used. In the older type of apparatus, one or two sliders make contact with any desired turn of wire, the insulation of the wire being scraped off on top of the wires along a narrow path lengthwise of the coil. More modern sets use no sliders, but have switches whose points are connected by tap wires to turns of wires in the coil. One switch takes care of single turns, and the other switch makes contact to groups of, say, ten turns each.

Loading coils are merely large coils used to increase the inductance of the circuit when the inductance of the receiving oscillation transformer is not great enough to be tuned to the wave length received.

The illustration shows a typical receiving variable condenser with air dielectric, which is generally used. The maximum capacity of these receiving condensers for short wave receivers is usually 0.0005 microfarads, adjustable to a minimum of nearly zero. A set of semi-circular metal plates is rotated between a corresponding set of fixed plates, forming alternate layers of air dielectric (insulation) with adjacent conductors of opposite polarity. In damped wave reception the finer secondary tuning is done by a variable condenser. In working with vacuum tubes most of the tuning is done with the variable condensers. In the primary it sometimes happens that, with undamped or continuous waves, the tuning must be closer than that afforded by single turns of the primary inductance coils, so a variable condenser is placed in parallel with the primary and is also used for tuning.

UNIT TYPE AUDION AMPLIFIER OF THREE PANELS

A single one-step amplifier of the most efficient type. Each step will amplify the signals in the detector set ten times, so that by the addition of amplifiers, a loud speaking receiver may be used to make the signals audible all over the operating room and the usual head receivers may be dispensed with except for the very weakest signals. A 40 volt "B" battery is all that is required, though higher plate voltage will give greater amplifications.

TODAY—The women's vote has become the chief factor to be considered in the forthcoming mayoralty race, writes John D. Mueller, of Chicago.

TOMORROW—William G. Cayce, of Los Angeles, makes some observations concerning a "caravan" of modern gypsies touring California.

By JOHN D. MUELLER
For International News Service

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—What will the women do?

Political Chicago, girding for one of its most bitter mayoralty campaigns, is wondering. None, from the lowliest of ward henchmen to the man whose word may have been law heretofore in the political realm, seem to know. Each faction is making its bid for the much-coveted "women's vote." New political strategy is being noted with each passing day as the game of chess for the vote of Chicago's women progresses.

In Chicago political parties are so torn by internal strife, dissension and petty jealousies that in a struggle, such as that impending, factions, not parties, are considered most. There is a semblance of unity among the Democrats, largely one of necessity resulting from the efforts to unseat William Hale Thompson, who for eight years occupied the powerful chair at the city hall. Whether that unity will last, now that Thompson is out of the fight, is a question.

This condition makes the women's vote an all important factor in the result. A unified women's vote could very easily swing an election here. That fact is recognized by the political strategists of the city, and each is courting the feminine vote.

The preliminary-to-the-campaign activities of two recognized leaders among the contenders for the mayorship afford examples of the methods being experimented with as the skilled campaign leaders "feel out" the attitude of the women. They are Arthur C. Lueder, who resigned his office as postmaster here to enter the political imbroglio, and Judge William E. Dever, Democrat. Both are supported by leading newspapers of the city and are recognized as likely candidates for nomination.

With the announcement of the candidacy of Judge Dever came the first real open bid for the women's vote. It came in form of newspaper publicity—but not the old glamorous type. It came in form of photographs, showing the candidate at home with his wife and kiddies at night. He was pictured in little stories accompanying the photographs as a home-loving man. They were quiet little stories, without flashy heads, "played" inside, where the wife and mother would see and read as she scurried about "getting dinner for dad and the kids." It was a bit of truly strategic advertising.

When William Hale Thompson tossed a bombshell into the local political maelstrom with a definite announcement of his retirement from the campaign, activity reigned in the Lueder camp. At once efforts were started to weld the broken cogs in the Republican machine. What seemed likely to be little more than a half-hearted fight suddenly became the preparation for a titantic struggle.

Then came the Lueder bid for the women's vote. Official announcement was made that in every branch of the campaign women would be given equal representation. On every committee the woman voter would have equal representation with her male associate. There will be women speakers who will rank equally with men in leadership of the Lueder campaign. In short, the women will be dealt a five-card hand in the Lueder game of political cards.

Not that there has been any lack of blazy front page advertising. Good black ink has been used in abundance. Doubtless the campaign will develop all oratory and bombast, minus which no American political battle would be complete.

There has, however, been an additional appeal, and of a different variety. One candidate is seeking to impress the women. It would seem, through taking them into his absolute confidence. The other, preliminary steps in the campaign would indicate, is striving to impress them as a "home man."

Neither has said anything about his merits as an economist to date.

This will be a campaign watched the country over. With the 1924 Presidential election nearing, political leaders are interested, as are Chicago's political leaders, in knowing "What will the women do?"

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S UMBRELLA WINDOWS

"What's the matter, Nurse Jane? I hope nothing has happened! Why aren't you down?" asked Uncle Wiggily one morning, calling up stairs to his muskrat lady housekeeper, who was still in her room.

"Did the rain leak in on you during the night?" went on the bunny rabbit gentleman, for it was raining hard outside — the drops splashing down and making little holes in the banks of snow. Uncle Wiggily thought perhaps the roof might have a hole in it.

"No, the rain didn't come in on me," said the muskrat lady. "But I have such a headache I can't come down to breakfast."

Oh, that's too bad. Don't worry about breakfast. I can get my own," said Uncle Wiggily. "And then I'll go to Dr. Possum's and get you some medicine to cure your headache."

"You never can go out in all this rain," objected Nurse Jane.

"Oh, yes, I can—I'll take my umbrella," said Uncle Wiggily. "It really ought to snow instead of rain, for this is winter, but we can't make the weather do what we wish it to, Janie."

"No more we can," agreed the muskrat lady. "But I do hate to have you go out in this storm! Hark to the wind blow!"

"Res, it does blow," said Uncle Wiggily, looking down from the window. "But I don't mind that."

However, after he had brought up Nurse Jane a cup of carrot coffee, which made her head feel a little better, and when the bunny rabbit gentleman started out with his umbrella, he found he had to mind the wind somewhat. For the wind blew the rain down in such a way that, to keep the drops out of his face, Uncle Wiggily had to hold his umbrella almost straight in front of him instead of over his head.

"I can't see where I am going," he thought, "holding my umbrella this way, but—"

Just then he bumped into something hard.

"I beg your pardon," he exclaimed. Then he looked from beneath the umbrella and he saw —only a lamp post.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Uncle Wiggily, for he was jolly even in a storm. He hopped a little farther, with his umbrella still held in front of his face, and once more he bumped.

"Beg your pardon!" he exclaimed.

This time it was a fence.

"Hum," said Uncle Wiggily. "I guess I didn't harm the fence."

But, as it happened, hiding behind the fence were the Fox and the Wolf. They saw Uncle Wiggily passing on, holding his umbrella in front of his face, and the Fox said:

"This is a good chance to catch that rabbit!"

"How?" asked the Wolf.

"Well, he can't tell where he is going," went on the Fox. "His head is down under the umbrella. We'll stand right in front of him when he comes back from where he is going. He'll bump into us. He'll stop to beg pardon, as he did to the fence, and we can grab him."

"Oh, very good!" growled the Wolf, "but I call it bad. The Fox and the Wolf watched until they saw the rabbit go in Dr. Possum's and then they hid near the fence again to wait for him to come out."

"My, this is a terrible storm, doctor," said the bunny, as he got Nurse Jane's headache medicine. "I ran into a lamp post and a fence, because I held my umbrella in front of me."

"You should have windows in your umbrella," said Dr. Possum.

"Windows?" cried the bunny, in surprise.

"Yes, like mine. In the cloth of my umbrella I have sewed two little windows of celluloid like those in the back of an auto. I can hold the umbrella away down over my face and still see where I am going by looking through the celluloid windows."

"Oh, I wish I had an umbrella like that!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"I'll sew some pieces of celluloid in your umbrella and make windows," said Dr. Possum, and he did.

When Uncle Wiggily started back the wind had changed and still blew in his face. But he "Beg your pardon!" he exclaimed could see through the umbrella windows. And when he reached the fence the Fox and Wolf jumped out at him.

"Ah, I see you!" cried Uncle Wiggily. And, instead of running into the bad chaps, the bunny poked them with the sharp end of his umbrella and made them run away.

"Fooled again!" howled the Fox and Wolf. And then the rabbit hopped safely home and cured Nurse Jane's headache, and she thought his umbrella windows were wonderful.

So if the ear muff doesn't try to look through the eyeglass when the phonograph is singing the rag doll to sleep, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's rubber coat.

Auto Driver Strikes Man Hurt in Crash

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—The infallible memory of his victim cost Claude R. Repine, who had already been assessed a fine of $50 for careless driving, an additional $50 in a local court. Judge Fleming was presiding.

The trial was proceeding with the usual formalities when James Brunk, plaintiff, interrupted.

"I wouldn't have minded it so much, Judge," Brunk mumbled, "if he hadn't hit me when I came to and asked his name."

"You mean he (indicating Repine struck you?" asked Judge Fleming.

"I got up from the pavement, after I was knocked 'out' by the collision," said Brunk, "and asked: 'What is your name?' 'I'll show you what my name is,' he said and he hit me on the head."

Judge Fleming glared at Repine.

"Did you hit this man?" he asked.

"Yes," Repine responded.

"You are fined $100," the judge concluded.

Stray City Cats Free Nebraska Town of Rats

ALLIANCE, Neb., Feb. 23.—Alliance is happy, for the town is purged of its stray cats.

Farmers in the vicinity of the Alliance dump heap are satisfied, for the countryside has been swept clean of its rat pest.

Sam Shelton, negro, city scavenger, is bubbling over with joy, for Sam is to be cited by the City Council for some suitable reward. It was Sam's idea that cleaned up the town's alleys and the dump heap.

Farmers in the Alliance country threatened the city with damage suits because, they contended, armies of rats invaded their barns and granaries and cribs for an annual loot of thousands of dollars. The invading rodents, the farmers complained, came from the city's dumping ground, which, they insisted, was a veritable rat incubator.

The city appealed to Shelton. Sam went out in the highways and byways gathering in feline tramps and hoboes and "Wobblies," and dumped the whole family of toms and tabbies on the city dump. Rats disappeared almost over night.

Gas Suicides Rouse British Authorities

LONDON, Feb. 23.—England is aroused over its "suicidal gas."

Every winter England has a flood of suicides by gas, but this year there are an unusual number. It is charged that the gas companies are furnishing gas which contains such a high degree of carbon monoxide that suicide is made easy, and there is a demand that something be done about it.

Not only is the high degree of carbon monoxide an aid to would-be suicides, but it is a danger to those who want to live. There have been a number of deaths of late from gas poisoning. Recently thirty children were stricken with gas poisoning while attending a dance.

Dead Star's Number Is Sacred to Team

NE WYORK, Feb. 23.—The absence of the numeral "6" on the back of any St. Nicholas hockey player was explained recently by Jack Bierworth, captain of the team. Bierworth said that the number was formerly used by the late Hobey Baker, former football hockey star.

"Although he is no longer with us," Bierworth declared, "we do not use his number out of respect to his memory as the greatest player that ever wore the uniform of the St. Nicks."

Baker was killed in an airplane accident in France during the war.

URGES ELECTION OF BUSINESS MEN

Highest Type of Citizens Needed on City Board, Says Rotarian

Discussion of the local political situation developed at the Glendale Rotary club at its luncheon yesterday noon, when W. E. Hewitt spoke of the necessity of having Glendale business people in charge of the city's affairs at this critical period. It was the concensus of opinion that the great growth of Glendale demands the highest type of busineess men on the council.

H. S. Webb placed a resolution before the club urging the state highway commission to complete immediately the intrastate and transcontinental routes to the California line, it being pointed out by George Karr and Gil A. Cowan that these desert roads are now in deplorable shape. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Astoria, Ore., Rotary club will receive $50 from the Glendale organization for use as they see fit in the relief and restoration work in the city, which was destroyed by fire. All of the Astoria Rotarians are "staying by the ship," holding meetings on the docks and doing everything in their power to make their port bigger and better than before.

Broadcast Speech.

On the evening of March 8 the annual meeting will be held at a place to be announced later. District Governor Jack Williams of Long Beach will be the principal speaker.

For those who have radio sets capable of "listening in" on Kansas City, it is announced that Internatonal President Ray L. Haven's speech will be broadcasted from Kansas City at 6:30, Pacific time, tonight.

Elbert L. Pauley of Pasadena spoke on the district conference to be held there April 5, 6 and 7, and the Glendale club voted 100 per cent registration following the report that Pasadena, Long Beach and Los Angeles had done likewise.

Seventeen Rotarians and guests from here will attend the luncheon given by the San Bernardino club at the Orange Show on Saturday.

Aid Benefit Fund.

Roy L. Kent, president; George B. Karr, vice-president; D. G. Crofton, J. I. Wernette and C. H. Kirkman are among those who plan to attend the convention of Rotary International in St. Louis this summer, it was announced.

On motion of F. W. W. Henry, $10 was voted the postal clerks for the Washington ball, the proceeds of which go to the sick fund.

G. W. (Bill) Byers, Champaign, Ill., hotel proprietor, who has his winter residence here, was welcomed back to Glendale, and J. Will Johnson of the Pueblo, Colo., club also attended. The latter is actively interested in the promotion of Glendale at the present time.

Nebraska Doctors May Lose Their Licenses

LINCOLN, Neb. Feb. 23. — Nebraska physicians and surgeons, licensed within the last three and one-half years, are watching court records with considerable anxiety. Every license issued since the passage of the Code bill in 1919, it has been discovered, may be declared illegal should the issue be carried to court.

This discovery was made by the new governor, Charles W. Bryan, in examining the 1919 Code bill with a view to repeal several of its provisions. Governor Bryan found that the Code law nullified the act creating the state medical advisory board and that the body which issues medical licenses has been serving for nearly four years without legal authority.

When the board is again legalized by an act to be presented at the present session of the state legislature it is planned to issue a blanket order setting young physicians and surgeons at their ease. Meanwhile the new M. D.'s will keep a weather eye on opponents of their profession—and the court dockets.

Popular Syncopators Play for Legion Post

Harry Emme and his syncopators, who entertained the Glendale American Legion last summer in a jazz contest, now has his orchestra playing for the South Pasadena American Legion post dances every Saturday night. He reports that former service men from the vicinity find it a happy meeting place where they may take their friends for the evening.

OUTSIDE RETAIL FIRMS EXCLUDED

Only Glendale Merchants to Be Asked to Exhibit At Exposition

Reports submitted to the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce yesterday by the committee that has been canvassing the local merchants in connection with the approaching Merchants Industrial Exposition indicated that the impression was entertained in certain quarters that outside retailers would be invited to display their wares at the exposition in the event that the local retailers did not reserve space for their exhibits. This impression, it is officially declared, is a totally erroneous one, and, even if the Glendale retail stores should refrain from taking an active part in the exposition, no outsiders whose merchandise would tend to compete with that of the local stores will be asked to take space in the exposition.

Harry L. Leavitt, director general of the exposition, in a statement issued yesterday, stated:

"It is the aim of myself and of those associated with me to make the coming exposition exclusively a Glendale affair, and no competitors of Glendale merchants will be encouraged to participate in it. Only recognized manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers will be asked to rent space in the exposition, and our stand in this matter is clearly indicated by the fact that I have already refused to consider several applications for space that I have received from some of the leading retailers in Southern California.

Exclude Outsiders

"As I said, this is going to be exclusively a Glendale exposition, and no opposition to Glendale firms will be permitted in the display of any exhibits, that may be shown. We want the Glendale merchants to share in the project secure in the knowledge that the exposition is being planned to encourage local industry and for no other reason than the desire to boost Glendale and its resources, and any move that would tend to conflict with this aim will be rigorously frowned upon my myself and by everyone who is working with me to make this exposition an advertising asset to Glendale and its commercial and industrial life."

Mr. Leavitt's statement is confirmed by Secretary James M. Rhoades and other officials of the Chamber of Commerce, with whom Mr. Leavitt is working in the closest harmony.

The date set for the leasing of space in the exposition grounds has been set for March 1, and it is the desire of those in charge of the affair that those who intend to exhibit at the exposition should reserve their space at that time, as the first applicants will be given the best choice of the spaces that have been set aside for exhibitors.

Beavers Become Pests To Nebraska Stockmen

ALLIANCE, Neb., Feb. 23. — Beavers were all but extinct in Nebraska only a few years ago, when the government placed a permanent closed season on the little dam-building fur-bearers.

Propagation has been so rapid that today the beaver is a real "pest" in the northwestern section of Nebraska.

Resolutions demanding an open season of one month each year for the killing of beaver have been passed by the Western Nebraska Stockgrowers' Association and forwarded to the Nebraska delegation in Congress.

Streams have been dammed and thousands of acres of meadowland flooded and ruined by beavers, the resolutions declare. The stockmen ask the right legally to hunt beaver from November 1 to December 1.

Brothers Lose Fingers While Working on Farm

YUBA CITY, Feb. 23.—A peculiar experience befell Lawrence and Albert Sargent, employes of the John Sullivan ranch here, while at work on a tractor. Lawrence Sargent was the first to be injured. He was working on the tractor when in some manner he caught his hand in the machinery and had two of his fingers taken off. The following day Albert Sargent was working on the same tractor and he had the same two fingers of his hand taken off when he caught his hand in the machinery. Both brothers are now laid up and it will be some time before they are able to resume work.

Pretty Newsgirl Has Post on Brand Corner

The newsboy must give way. Equal suffrage has brought the newsgirl into the local field. She is little Miss Genevieve Rose who sells papers on the southwest corner of Broadway and Brand boulevard every afternoon.

"Gee whizz, how do yah expect us to keep even with a 'skoit' ", exploded one of the boys who formerly held the record for the corner.

Perhaps Skinny Shaner can solve the problem.

FORM OF PAPER

Nature makes paper from the waterplant, known as the "conferna," which grows in long filaments, is disintegrated from the bottom of the pool and rising to the surface is churned about by wind and waves until washed ashore, where it dries as a veritable sheet of paper.

Self-Accused Cripple Asks Prison Sentence

DALTON, Ga., Feb. 23.—Judge M. C. Traver received a letter recently from J. M. Nix, formerly a justice of the peace, of Murray county, who states that he is guilty of forgery and larceny after trust, and he requests that he be brought back from New Orleans, where he is living, and lodged in the federal penitentiary.

The local bank, in which Nix declares he cashed a forged check, also received a letter from him stating that unless the bank officials sent for him he was going to pick out a nice, shiny mail box and break into it, so the federal authorities would take charge of him. He added he had tried to get into hospitals in four states and couldn't, and he was urgently in need of medical attention.

In writing to Judge Tarver, Nix declared he had to be either a beggar or a crook and go to jail, because of his crippled condition.

"I have tried them all," he stated, "and I'd rather be a prisoner."

Will of Washington's Mother Is Displayed

Appropriate to the observation of George Washington's birthday yesterday was a copy of his mother's will in the display window of E. E. Dail, jeweler, at 136 North Brand boulevard. The original is on file at Fredericksburg, Va.

Roses picked in southern France in May and June total 2,500,000 pounds.

Laundry Proof Shirt Built for Britishers

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Attention, men! Your British brethren are going to exult in "laundry proof" shirts.

After years of warfare between the launderers and the shirtmakers a truce has been declared.

The shirtmakers have declared that the launderers were to blame for short-lived shirts.

The launderers have replied, with profuse charges, that the shirtmakers never made shirts intended to withstand ordinary laundry wear.

Now an armistice has been declared, and both the shirtmakers and the launderers are working on a "laundry proof" shirt.

The shirtmakers are guaranteeing good materials in their shirts, and the launderers are promising a standardized washing process.

It looks as though the British men may yet be able to wear their shirts after having been laundered more than once.

Shoe Buyers Eager to Buy at Bargain Price

Dollar shoes will continue to go quickly at the Kafateria Shoe store, 126 North Brand boulevard, until Monday night when the wonderful offer of values from $2.50 to $8.00 for the ridiculously low price of $1 will be discontinued.

Many wise purchasers have already made their selection and it has been necessary to re-stock the store for the continuation of the sale. In other columns an announcement will be found regarding this unusual shoe offer.

THEATRES

The GLENDALE

"If I Were Queen," now showing at the Glendale Theatre with Ethel Clayton in the stellar role, was founded on the novel "The Three-Cornered Kingdom," by Du Vernet Rabell.

It shows a new Ethel Clayton, beautiful and talented as ever but with a new radiance that gives atmosphere and charm to this romantic film whose locale is one of the mythical kingdoms of the Balkans.

"If I Were Queen" is built on impressive lines. It has big scenes and situations galore, perhaps the most thrilling of which is a sensational railroad wreck that caps the climax of realism for thrills.

The T. D. & L.

"Java Head," the Paramount super-production by George Melford, adapted from the Saturday Evening Post novel by Joseph Hergesheimer, continues at the T. D. & L. Theatre.

It is a stirring tale of far-off adventure, telling of how an American sea captain, in a palanquin in Shanghai, found an exquisitely beautiful Chinese girl—and brought her back to the States as his wife.

What his American sweetheart did when faced with this situation makes the culmination of as strange, colorful and gripping a romance as Joseph Conrad ever wrote—and as realistic. You will not want to miss this picture.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT WE READ

"I am tremendously interested in advertising," I heard a woman say the other day, "that's the part of the business that my husband handles."

The man to whom she said it went on to talk about advertising and her answers showed at once that she knew nothing about the elementary principles of it. He offered to lend her a book on the subject and she said she would like it. "I've always wanted to read something on that line," she said.

"Tremendously interested." "Always wanted to read something on that line." Yet plainly she had never read anything. And she lived in a town with a fine library.

How We Do Kid Ourselves!

How much we do kid ourselves about the things we want to do, and the things we are interested in, and the amount of serious thinking we do.

It is truly appalling when you stop to think of how much of our time we spend reading novels and short stories and how little we spend on more serious books on biography and history and political economy and things of that sort.

What was the last non-fiction book that you read?

If you were to sit down and make out a list of the non-fiction books that you read last year, how many would there be on it?

How often do you go to the dictionary and look up a new word which you have met in your reading? How often do you take the pains to verify a word when there is some uncertainty of its meaning?

Do You Look Things Up?

When some place is spoken of, the location of which is not at all clear in your mind, is it your habit to turn to your atlas and look it up?

When a question about historical fact comes up, do you each make a guess and let it go at that, or do you turn to the encyclopedia?

Perhaps there is no encyclopedia in your home. That would not be so strange for not everyone can afford an encyclopedia at first, but I have known homes of people who certainly did not consider themselves in the class of the ignorant and yet in which there was neither atlas nor dictionary.

It is so easy to muddle along, preoccupied with the matters of every day living and hardly using one's mind at all except in the routine ways, without realizing that one is doing that. One reads and one talks and it is not until something makes one unwillingly take stock that one realizes that one is reading little but fiction and the lightest of light articles, and talking little but personalities and weather talk.

The mind, so used, will surely grow each year feebler and less able to bite on anything hard. How can it help it, any more than one's digestion fed for years on predigested food would be able to cope with a normal diet?

Several Reader Friends have been kind enough to send me directions for the Fruit Sauce or Relish recently mentioned by "A Reader":

"Fruit Chili Sauce: One head of celery, 30 ripe tomatoes, six each of onions, peaches, pears and apples. Three each of red and green peppers. Four cups of brown sugar, two tablespoons of salt, one quart of hot cider vinegar, and two teaspoons each of ground cinnamon, mace, cloves and allspice. Chop all the ingredients fine, putting the spices in a small bag. Boil all together for two hours, or until thick. Mrs. B. D."

"Fruit Piccalilli: Fifteen ripe tomatoes, six large onions, two red peppers, six rather hard pears, six peaches. Cut these in small pieces and put them into a kettle with two heaping cups of brown sugar, one pint of vinegar, one tablespoon of salt and one teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, clove, mace and allspice. Boil this mixture for one and one-half hours, after it reaches the boiling point."

"Fruit Relish: I may have been the one whom 'A Reader' overheard speaking of fruit relish in a street car. Here is my original recipe: Put through a food chopper, or cut small by hand, two pounds of ripe tomatoes (which you have scalded to remove skins), five large apples, five large pears, one pound of onions, one stick of celery, and one package of seeded raisins. Turn this chopped mixture into a saucepan. Now, in a muslin bag, tie up together the foilowing: the rind of one lemon and two oranges cut small, one blade of mace, two whole cloves, three or four pieces of bruised ginger root, 12 or 14 pepper corns and a little allspice. Put this bagful of spices into the saucepan also. Then add one cupful of white vinegar and the juice of one lemon and two oranges, and boil all slowly for two hours. Remove bag of spices and turn the relish into glasses or jars and tie down for future use. During cooking, this must be stirred quite frequently. G. C. W."

"Fruit Sauce: Cut small 30 large tomatoes, six large peaches, six large pears and six large onions (without cores), or put them through the food chopper. Boil this chopped mixture two hours with one quart of vinegar, small bag of mixed spices, two tablespoons of salt and four cups of granulated sugar. Seal airtight in hot, sterilized jars. Mrs. L. S. M.

PUPILS PRESENT COMEDY PLAYLET

Students in French Classes Stage Performance at High School

Glendale Union High school stage was transformed into a "madhouse" today at two assemblies under the auspices of the French department.

"The Surprise of Isidore," which is the title of the one-act comedy presented, also proved to be the surprise of the audience—that is, such members as understood the French dialogue. However, the action was exciting and a resume of the plot was given in English by Miss Ruth Jackel.

The action centered around the arrival of Miss Cecil Chase, as "Isidore," at the home of Miss Lucille Howell, who played the part of Dr. Picard. Miss Ruth Berier played the part of the maid. Miss Florida Craig, who took the part of the mother-in-law, refused to be "tagged" as The Queen of Sheba in the asylum. Miss Lucile Howell, who pretended to be the good wife of Dr. Picard, further complicated matters by trying to have Isidore arrested as a thief.

Georgia Negress Dies At Age of 126 Years

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 23. — Eveline Bolton, negress, who was nearly three years old when George Washington died, and who would have remembered the war og 1912 had she ever been told of it, died recently in Oglethorpe county, Georgia.

The state board of health accepted as authentic the record that she lived for almost 126 years.

She was born on March 13, 1798, and died on December 24, 1922, as her grave marker will record it. The statistics have been carefully checked.

Justice H. H. Glenn found that the birth record had been furnished by N. H. Bolton, descendant of Noah Bolton, to whom "Aunt Evelyn" belonged. He also found that she had been a member of the Mount Zion church in good standing for 115 years.

He also found that her third child is still living at the age of 98 years. She had sixteen children, forty-eight grandchildren, and 191 great-grand children.

Deposing Old Teacher Causes School Strike

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Twelve boys went on "strike" at the Garfield School because their teacher, Andrew A. Ward, had been replaced by Miss Florence Green, young and pretty. School officials dismissed Ward because they considered his fifty years "too old."

The strikers picketed the school urging others to join. Miss Green called them loafers and went on with her work.

They Say That

The advertising of American business in American monthlies and weeklies amounts to about $150,000,000 a year, and newspaper advertising to about $650,000,000 a year, $800,000,000 in all, which is about as high as the bill for America's chewing gum, or lip sticks, rouge and powder.

George W. Hinman asks whether this is worth the money.

And he answers his question in the affirmative.

For he says that the value of what the United States produces amounts to about $40,000,000,000, and this advertising bill of $800,000,000 is therefore only about 2 per cent of the total amount of goods produced. Advertising is an important and essential element in distribution. It is more than that; it is the self-expression of business enterprise, and keeps it wholesome.

Russia tried the abandonment of advertising and found that advertising and business both departed together. If you are going to cut off all the blossoms from a plant, you are going, after awhile, to have no more plant.

There is one type of speeder to whom nothing appeals, as a deterring influence, except a figurative club. Such offenders are made to halt only by a stiff fine or a jail sentence, or by depriving them of their license to drive.

But there is another class of speeders—some who thoughtlessly transgress the laws against dangerous driving. This is a morally-responsible class. Persons of this type have conscience that is susceptible to influence. Appeals to their moral sensibilities are not in vain. They are not brutally careless. They are not the kind who would run down a pedestrian and then speed away without offering assistance. They are not wilful violators of law.

In striving to prevent violations of speed laws it would be well to keep this class of offenders in mind and to appeal to them through moral suasion. More could be accomplished toward winning them over to observance of laws and ordinances through persuasion and through appeals to moral responsibility and obligations of good citizenship, than to attempt to drive them by the lash of the law.

THE METHODICAL WOMAN

There are some women who are beautifully and enviably neat and methodical. I am not one of them, so I can write impersonally without preaching, only with wonder at them.

They are the kind that can make out marketing and shopping lists, and when they go out, purchase everything on the list and never anything besides, carefully calculating beforehand what it will cost, and paying that much and no more. They are not like the girl who went out in freezing January weather to buy much-needed waterproof shoes and returned bearing a beautiful new silk bathing suit for next July. I always return without at least one or two items not crossed off my shopping list (when I make one). And when I do make one I usually forget three or four things that should have been put down.

These are the women who never have a button loose on their shoes nor a hook without its eye securely fastened, nor a snap fastener that doesn't work. They never have hairs that straggle down the backs of their necks, or collars that aren't the last word in neatness. They are such good examples, these methodical women. We envy them, we strive to imitate them, we know that we are going to fail—and sometimes we don't even care.

I know all this sounds like heresy on my part, for I have recently been preaching the virtues of hair nets, shoemakers to keep one's shoes in good condition, and the virtues of sewing on hooks and eyes. Of course I want everyone to be neat and methodical because mussiness and carelessness is never becoming. Only I would not want to have my readers sacrifice everything to neatness and method. An element of imagination must enter everything from planning one's career to doing one's hair.

Massage into the tisses either olive oil or a building cream.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

SPIRITUALITY vs MATERIALITY

I, I, I: I, MYSELF: I
THE HISTORY OF ME BY ME

CHAPTER XLVI
Rickets

Today I am going to tell you what Dr. Hess and other doctors have found out about sunlight's preventing rickets. You know how important it is for a plant to have sunlight, how it cannot grow well without it. It has been found that sunlight is as important for babies and children as it is for plants.

While diet is extremely important and a deficient diet may lead to rickets, diet is not the chief cause of the disease, it is thought now. It is known that rickets develops mostly during the winter and spring months and decreases and almost disappears in the summer months. That is because in the summer months the children get more sunlight. So one of the preventive treatments is to see that we get sunlight.

The sunlight must be the direct sunlight — that is, not filtered through glass or clothing, because that filters out the curative rays. When it is cold, as it is in the winter, we very young and tender babies cannot have the benefit of the direct sunlight so much, and that is why we should get the cod liver oil. It will be all right for the children that are old enough to have their arms and legs exposed even in the winter months, to get the cod liver oil, too. Of course, you must always remember that these two things have to be combined with correct diet.

This is the way the sunlight treatment is given to the children who are old enough to be exposed during the cold weather, in the hospital where Dr. Hess has charge. Warm dresses are made of heavy material sewed across the bottom, something like little rompers. They are made without sleeves. There is an elastic run around the armholes and around the openings for the little legs to come through, so that they hug tight and the cold does not go under them. In these the children are put in the sunlight for about 15 minutes. Gradually the time is increased until they can stay an hour or so.

The arms are covered up when they are first exposed, and when they get used to this amount of cold and sunlight then the arms are exposed also. And, when it is very mild, the chest and back are exposed.

Of course, there can be no rule about this exposure. It has to be regulated according to the temperature and the sensitiveness of the babies' skin. The treatment should be given every day if possible, but four or five times a week seems to suffice.

It is found in this hospital that the signs of rickets disappear under this treatment. Of course, in this hospital they take X-ray pictures to watch the development, and these show that the bones begin to get their deposit of calcium salt and to develop right.

Do you know how they found out about this sunlight treatment? They found out by experimenting upon young rats and dogs. They fed them diets that caused rickets and kept them in the dark so they did not get sunlight, and then gave them the sunlight treatment and they were cured without changing the diets.

I think these animals must feel very happy that they are serving such useful lives to help save little human babies' lives, don't you?

I am sure I have told you enough about this so you can see the importance of letting your babies and your children have plenty of the right food and sunlight, and cod liver oil, also, if necessary.

News Notes From Valley Towns

Van Nuys baseball fans today are still celebrating the winning of the San Fernando Valley League championship. A large crowd turned out last Sunday to see Van Nuys trim Lankershim in the second game of the play-off series. The Van Nuys team now has aspirations for the championship of Southern California.

An egg the size of a peanut and an egg over three inches in length were "manufactured" in succession recently by a Rhode Island Red biddy belonging to H. C. Woody of Van Nuys.

Thirteen Van Nuys Odd Fellows Monday, February 19, 1923 attended the funeral services in Monrovia for Edward Hall one of the pioneers of Van Nuys. He was a charter member of the Van Nuys' lodge.

The formal opening of the Allington Motor Company's new building in Van Nuys will be held March 3 with a special program of entertainment. The establishment will represent an investment of $35,000.

The Van Nuys Finance Corporation, which is capitalized for $100,000, has received its state charter and is preparing to open temporary quarters in the California Bank Building. Officers are: C. T. Wardlaw, president; W. E. Bierkamp, vice-president and general manager; Rollin C. Smith, treasurer; and W. E. Chisholm, secretary. Directors are: Mark Grimes and B. R. Holloway.

Van Nuys poultry fanciers are looking forward to the arrival next week of R. B. Easson, member of the extension of the University of California. He will undertake some studies in brooding. During his stay there will be a number of poultrymen's meetings under the auspices of the Farm Bureau.

One of the most productive seasons ever enjoyed in the San Fernando valley is predicted by Van Nuys orchardists. All of them, who are interested in the dried fruit industry, will meet the evening of March 1 at the Van Nuys High School where the contracts for the coming season will be explained.

British Accept U. S. Yacht Race Challenge

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Many prominent English yachting clubs associated with the British-American Cup club have accepted the challenge from the Seawanhaka Yacht Club of America for a series of races to be held in the Solent—the famous stretch of water between Southampton and Cowes and the Mecca of English yachtsmen—this year.

Each contest will consist of six races, and the dates suggested are August 1, 3, 4, 6, 8 and 9.

The yachts taking part, it has been agreed, will be of six metre rating, international measurement, and manned by crews of four, in charge of amateurs.

There have already been two contests for the cup, one in the Solent in 1921, when the British yachts won, and another last year in the United States, which was won by the American yachts.

HUES OF SHIRTS RIVAL RAINBOWS

Blazing Stripes Are Seen in Clothes Displayed by Londoners

By LUTHER A. HUSTON,
For International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Those wondrous color schemes that usually are seen only in rainbows or the Grand Canyon are to be as common as fog wherever well-dressed men congregate in London this Spring.

In fact some of the radiant 'rags' being exhibited by London tailors and shirtmakers would mantle the brow of any self-respecting rainbow with a blush of modesty. Yet London haberdashers solemnly maintain that the stuff they are displaying is what the well-dressed man of taste and discrimination will wear.

The tendency, according to the merchants, is all toward a bolder tone in clothes. Colors that in pre-war days would have been regarded as extremely daring are now scarcely noticed by the clothes connoisseurs as they paw through stacks of materials in search of something really fit for a gentleman to wear.

Khaki's Reaction

According to one London shirtmaker, this tendency is a" throwback" from the days when men were bored to death with the eternal drab khaki of the army uniform. The only surprising feature is that the craving for brilliant colors has continued so long after the war and that it does not show any apparent signs of dying out.

One of the most noticeable things about the shirts being displayed by London's most fashionable makers is their stripes. Blazing paths of color, a half-inch or more in width, traverse the cloth that is being displayed to those who want their shirts "tailor made." In the ready-made shops there is the same absence of modesty and piquancy of tone displayed in shirt offerings. Cold print cannot do justice to the gay colorings displayed.

Suits "Loud," Too

In the matter of suits the materials exhibited are fitting mates for the shirts. Novelty patterns predominate in the stocks of the leading London tailors, and the conservative cloth is displayed only when some old-fashioned customer insists on being shown the same thing he always has been used to seeing.

"Only novelty patterns are selling," one woolen merchant declared. "The bread-and-cheese stuff is a glut on the market."

While the men are blossoming forth in gorgeous Spring raiment the gentler sex will follow the same tendencies, according to indications seen in early Spring displays. The new fashions will have plenty of color, with red, green, purple and bright blue the predominating tints. The models will be straight and the skirts a little shorter than was the predominant tendency in the styles of six months ago.

SHAPE OF THE MOON

The shape of the moon at its first appearance, was not spherical, but its present form was probably assumed after it had escaped to a distance of a few thousand miles because the earth would not have permitted so large a body to retain this shape so near its own surface.

$50,000 STOCK IN JEWELER'S STORE

Glendale Branch of Immense Organization Opens in Jensen Building

The Lewis Jewelry Co., that operates stores in a number of Southern California cities, this week opened its Glendale branch in the Jensen Palace Grand Shops on North Brand boulevard, leasing the north half of the store in which to display its $50,000 stock of jewelry, watches, silverware and cut glass, that is stored in fixtures that are valued at $8000.

Tre location chosen by the firm for its local branch, according to F. C. Butler, the manager, is one of the finest that the firm has been able to secure in any of the cities where it is established, while the town itself holds a promise for the future that is not equalled by that of any other town where the company is operating.

Manager Butler has been associated with the Lewis Jewelry Co. for several years. All of his business life has been spent in this business, and his father also was a jeweler and diamond expert, so that the traditions of the profession are a part of his training for the last two generations.

Watch Department.

Associated with Mr. Butler is Joseph E. Erlich, the firm's watchmaker, who graduated from the Waltham factories after many years of experience in the manufacture of fine watches, and this experience is placed at the disposal of Glendale watch buyers in a department that carries every standard make of watch on the market today.

It is in the diamond and precious stone department, however, that the firm claims to stand preeminent. C. C. Lewis, the head of the organization, is admitted to be an infallible judge of diamonds, and Mr. Butler is also acknowledged to rank close to his chief in his judgment of gems of all kinds. The stock of diamonds carried by the firm in its various branches is the biggest on the coast, Mr. Butler claims, and the quality of the stones is unsurpassed by the stock of any diamond dealer in the country.

Another specialty that the firm handles in large quantities through its widespread organization is the genuine Osborne gold china, of which it carries what is said to be the only stock in Glendale.

Liberal Policy.

The firm has for years worked on a policy of allowing people of reliable character to buy from their immense stocks on liberal terms that permit purchasers of moderate means to furnish their homes with needed jewelry and silverware on long time payments, and this policy will be followed in the Glendale branch also.

The ciass of material handled by the Lewis Jewelry Co. is of the highest, and the selections have been made with the best taste and with an intimate knowledge of the market that only comes from years of close association with the best lines produced by the world's master craftsmen in every department. The store itself is well lighted, and the atmosphere is such as to impress favorably every patron of the establishment.

While the firm is now open for business, the formal opening of the Glendale branch will not be held until the date when the entire Jensen building will be thrown open with a celebration that will be shared in by every tenant of the Palace Grand Shops.

WOMAN DENIES FAKE AT SUICIDE

Husband Says She Plans to Get Divorce and Wed 'Other Man' in Case

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 23.—Sacramento's "hoax suicide," which had resulted in a sensational search of three days for Mrs. Bertha Bland, wife of Edward Bland of this city, was solved late last night with the finding of the missing woman in Reno, Nev., where she plans to bring suit for divorce.

Mrs. Bland denied any knowledge of the "planted" evidence which police found in a rowboat on the Sacramento river and which at first led to a theory of suicide. The fake suicide evidence consisted of several articles of women's wearing apparel, an empty carbolic acid bottle and a photograph of Mrs. Bland.

Bland said here today that he would contest the action of his wife to secure a divorce. "If she gets her freedom she will marry George Fessler and I intend to block her," Bland said. Fessler, mining engineer of Allegheny, was named by Bland as the "other man" in the case. Fessler, a married man, denies the charges.

Probe Legal Aspects Of Legion Site Sale

The legal aspect of the proposed sale by the city to the local post of the American Legion of a clubhouse site at Campbell and Mountain streets is being investigated today by Assistant City Attorney Ray Morrow. He is endeavoring to ascertain what steps will be necessary to have the matter placed upon the ballot at the municipal election, April 10.

COMMENT
THAT'S ALL

Real Pleasure Comes Cheap Don't Burn The Grass Roots Clearing Way For Progress 'Glendale' Is a Trademark

By Gil A. Cowan

REMEMBER, real pleasure must not be paid for! That is only one of the many striking statements of Ernest Thompson Seton when he talks. And you can take almost any sentence he utters for a sermon, editorial or comment.

Real pleasure is that which you make, something that appeals to the imagination. It can be enjoyed by those of four and 94, according to Mr. Thompson. It cannot be bought, for then it would be amusement.

Wholesome recreation in the great out-of-doors, athletics such as running, jumping, swimming; the drawing of sand pictures; the study of nature and so on—those are the things which he pleases to term real pleasure.

Now, what about them? Can they be enjoyed by all? Let us take swimming, for example: In Kansas City, at Fairmount park, the writer recollects fond parents teaching their two-year-olds to swim. You often hear of that. In the great Salt Lake one summer's afternoon a group of newspaper men took great pleasure in seeing a bearded patriarch of ninety odd years dip his whiskers in the brine.

Kiddies will make mud pies, older folks will build sand castles on the beach; boys will make caves in the hillside and the old prospector will end his days in his diggings in the search of gold, which, if found, he never could enjoy. It is the pleasure of discovery, the pleasure of wholesome work, the pleasure of pioneering that leads men and families and races on to the end of the rainbow.

California for the present age seems to be the golden pot at the end of the rainbow for most of us. Here is the opportunity to get a piece of almost virgin ground, to build a home, rear a family, and raise things in general, including a little "hell" with our politicians.

But Mr. Seton also advises us that our pleasure, to be real, must not hurt any living thing; it must not be destructive. In this we all should concur.

Mean things said about officials do not hurt them half as much as reflects upon the whole population who put them where they are. Criticism of civic organizations may kill them, but beyond that it deadens community spirit and finally disrupts all organization.

To illustrate, burn out the grass roots and for years you will have barren land, according to those who have noticed the effect of prairie fires in the early days.

Glendale wants no poison sown among its citizens. Otherwise it shall reap the whirlwind. Glendale wants to be progressive. What it has not, it should obtain. No truly great man quits because the task is too difficult. No great city stops at anything in attaining its ends.

What if New York had choked off population, barred its doors and sat down and said the Hudson river tunnel for transporting its water supply was an impossibility? Plague, pestilence, ruin would have followed in the wake.

What if Los Angeles had quavered at the thought of bringing its water supply by aqueduct across the desert and into an almost arid country for metropolitan population? Certainly, it would not be the center of world thought today.

And what if Glendale refuses to accept the much smaller task of handling its sewage? That problem is nothing compared with the Hudson tunnel, the Los Angeles aqueduct, the Panama canal, or spanning San Francisco bay.

A bill now before the California legislature, approved by the legal department of the city of Los Angeles, will permit Glendale or any other city in the state to build its sewer, water, gas or electric lines through other municipalities.

Another bill before the legislature provides for the formation of a metropolitan sanitary district; and that is not all the legislation designed to clear the way.

Remember, folks, Glendale IS Glendale BECAUSE IT IS Glendale. Just around the corner lies Los Angeles; over the hills to the west is Hollywood; to the east is Pasadena, and so on.

One man moved from Pasadena to Glendale; another moved from Glendale to Pasadena; many move here from Los Angeles; others move into Los Angeles. Is it because they love one or the other the more or less? Perhaps; but there are many factors that enter into such things which have no bearing whatever on the political or economic sides of the question.

Usually, it is a matter of environment. I remember the day when actors formed a large share of Glendale's population. Many of them remained, but today all classes are attracted to the jewel city because of its high quality of citizenship, just as Pasadena attracts the wealthy.

"Glendale" is a trademark. Loyalty to Glendale means something. Paraphrasing Sir Walter Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel,"

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
'This is my own 'my chosen city.' "

If not, folks, what a pity!

HAPPINESS GILDS SUNSET OF LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pearson Celebrate 57 Years of Wedded Bliss

In a little vine-covered California bungalow out at 644 East Harvard street there's a happy couple living the romantic sequel to their marriage that took place February 20, 1866. They are Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pearson, father and mother of James Pearson of 700 North Louise street, and their many southern California friends are taking occasion this week to congratulate them on the fifty-seventh anniversary of their marriage.

The visitor at the little cottage home may find Mr. Pearson sitting on the porch enjoying the beauties of the early spring weather. He is a fine looking old gentleman and although his 86 years have whitened his hair and lined his face, he has a clear eye, hearty hand clasp and alert mind, and happily leads one into the house to greet his sweetheart of over 50 years ago.

His little sweetheart is a dear old lady of 76 years and upon introduction the visitor is at once conscious of her pleasing southern accent and gracious hospitality.

Interesting Couple

They are a delightfully interesting old couple and their happy camaraderie and jovial repartee as they join in telling of their wedding in Wilmington, N. C., and of the happenings of the years since is a real romance.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pearson are natives of Missouri and it was when he was 17 and she was 9 that she promised to wait for him.

She was the daughter of an Episcopal clergyman and church duties took the family from one place to another and after their childish love affair the little girl and her family went south to live. She was educated in New Jersey and when she was 19 she and her girlhood sweetheart met again in Wilmington, N. C., renewed their love and were married February 20, 1866.

With their many friends wishing them Godspeed and happiness they left for their wedding journey, which took them by way of New York to their new home in Fayette, Mo.

Fifty-four Cousins

It was shortly after the Civil War, when conveniences were few and travel difficult. They journeyed by horse-drawn conveyances from Wilmington to Norfolk, Va., crossing numerous pontoon bridges, used after the war. At Norfolk they took a boat and went on to Baltimore and from there on to New York by train.

A week was spent in New York and then they took a train for Springfield, Ill. Mrs. Pearson tells with pleasure that she was the only woman traveling on the train. At Springfield the bride was presented to Mr. Pearson's fifty-four cousins.

When they reached Fayette, Mo., they found their new home, in which they lived forty-eight years and where their ten children were born.

Treasured Picture

One of the treasures in the little bungalow is an oil painting Mrs. Pearson made of this old home about which so many memories cling.

Of the ten children but five sons are living, James Pearson of Glendale; and Julian, Guy and Isaac, Jr., of Imperial Valley; and Benjamin Pearson, of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson have thirteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The little bungalow home is full of countless heirlooms and interesting possessions, among them being a large oil painting of Mr. Pearson's mother and her sister, a copy made by Mrs. Pearson of a Stuart picture made over 100 years ago.

Chess is one of Mr. Pearson's favorite pastimes and his worn chess table occupies a prominent place.

However, the most valued reminder of their marriage and their old home in Fayette is a beautiful old rosewood Hazelton Brothers square piano, a wedding gift to Mrs. Pearson from her husband's father.

It is a wonderfully clear-toned instrument and as Mrs. Pearson softly plays the tunes of long ago and Mr. Pearson stands by her side while they sing together "How Can I Leave Thee" one realizes that young love is sweet even at 84 and 76 years.

Mr. Spalding, who is initiating the home institute work in all parts of the United States, has recently been devoting his time to southern California. He will leave Sunday for Fresno, where he will hold another institute.

His work is similar to the father and son movement. He goes about among the Seventh Day Adventists holding institutes for the discussion and solution of home problems and for the study of child culture.

One of his duties is to supervise the publication of a monthly journal and other literature on the home. Upon completing his tour of the United States he will take up foreign work along the same lines.

CREAMERY TRUCK DAMAGED IN FIRE

Driver Suffers Burns When Gasoline Tank Goes Up in Flames

Excitement reigned about the Calla Lilly creamery at 1245 East Windsor road, for the second time this week, yesterday afternoon when another one of its trucks caught fire.

Pete Mathews of 127 West Broadway, who had charge of the truck, was able to get away from the burning car just in time to avoid being seriously injured by the explosion of the gasoline tank. As it was, his face and both hands were burned.

While the fire department was rushing chemicals to the scene, residents on Porter street were busy attaching hose to hydrants and "standing by" ready to protect their property.

Damage to the truck is estimated at over $100.

Songs Break Down Government Red Tape

Seymour Rechtseit. ©

All over Europe the voice of 9-year-old Seymour Rechtseit has caused audiences to marvel at the rare talent shown in his singing, but never has the youngster valued his voice so much as he does now, for it means that his mother, sister and brother, now in Poland, are coming to America to live. Representative Siegel, of New York, took the child before the house immigration committee in Washington, and the boy sang, first in Yiddish, then in Russian, then in Italian and finally in rich, clear English. His songs broke down government red tape, and Poland's immigration quota was raised to permit his relatives to enter. His father is a rabbi and cantor connected with the Hebrew orphan home and day nursery of New York city.

DEVELOPMENT OF AIR MAIL URGED

British Aid Magnate Calls American System Best Model to Follow

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Great fleets of airships carrying the royal mails to the remote corners of the British empire must be developed in the near future if Great Britain is to keep pace with the modern trend, in the opinion of G. Holt Thomas, England's pioneer commercial airplane magnate. The airplane and not the steamship, Thomas believes, must soon form the mail transportation link between England and her overseas possessions.

The pace set by the United States in the development of its air mail service, Thomas asserts, supplies the model England must follow in the establishment of its air mail organization. With the development of the commercial pioneer experience of America to draw upon, coupled with the rapid development of the commercial type of aircraft, establishment of a network of British commercial airlines is not only feasible, Thomas is convinced, but is a natural development that must come within a very few years.

Suitable for Mail

Although the transportation of mails by airship is not common in England or on the Continent at the present time, Thomas believes that it is in the direction of mail services that the future of commercial aviation lies.

"The development of aviation must be in the direction of mail service," Thomas said in an interview, "for which it is the most suitable form of transportation, owing to the necessity for high speed and quick delivery.

"In this respect the United States is to be congratulated on having established the first great lines devoted to the carriage of mails. It is true that America is a country of great distances, in which the airplane shows up to advantage, but Great Britain, although not possessing suitable distances within the confines of the British Isles, possesses within the British empire the great field for the development of air mails.

Link Up Empire

"The time taken for letters, for instance, from London to India, Australia, etc., could be reduced by one-tenth by air transportation, and it is hoped that great Britain imperial air lines will have due consideration and be founded in due course."

The commercial advantage of air mail transportation, Thomas pointed out, would be tremendous. With Great Britain increasingly dependent upon trade with her colonies for the prosperity of the nation, the carrying of mails to India and Australia in one-tenth of the present time would result in greatly increased trade facilities and act as a wonderful stimulus to commercial relations between the dominions and the home country.

BOOKS MAY GIVE CLEW TO SLAYER

Police Seek Correspondence Of Earl Remington to Clear Up Mystery

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Prohibition agents and police detectives were today endeavoring to locate the "business correspondence" and "system of books" maintained, they believe by Earl Remington, murdered clubman, and are of the opinion that they would give a clew to his assassin.

In his business as a constructor of bank furniture and safe deposit boxes, Remington maintained an accurate bookkeeping system and file of correspondence in one of the big downtown office buildings. His bootlegging "business," the police say was carried on from another office. At this second office was a big still for manufacturing whiskey, and the man Remington always referred to as his "business partner" was in charge of operations.

Letters in Code

At the time Remington was murdered he had attempted to shield himself with a leather brief case such as lawyers use. In this case the police found many letters, practically all of them believed to have some connection with his bootlegging activities. The letters, however, appear to have been written in a code which the police are having difficulty in deciphering.

The police are especially anxious to locate the book which held Remington's business checks. This book, with other data and correspondence disappeared from the secret office of Remington either the night of or the morning after the murder.

Wooden Leg Disrupts Household Serenity

LONDON, Feb. 23.—A wooden leg disrupted the wedded bliss of Frederick Woof and his wife. At least that was the testimony of Mrs. Woof in the divorce court.

Mrs. Woof sued for divorce on grounds of cruelty and misconduct. She charged that she suffered because her husband made fun of the fact that she had lost a leg.

Woof, according to his wife, used to annoy her by singing the following doggerel:

Has anyone seen my Peggy O'Flynn?
It is no joke, her nose is broke,
And one eye in a sling;
She hops around on her wooden leg,
And the thought of it makes me cry.
She makes a round hole in the mud as she goes;
That's what you can tell her by.

Describing how she lost her leg, Mrs. Woof testified that her husband threatened to "give her a good hiding" if she would not try to drive his motorcycle. She did so and collided with a tree, and, as a result of the accident, had to have her leg amputated.

Woof denied his wife's charges and filed a cross petition charging misconduct.

MUSICAL INVENTION

A device, which might be called a musical typewriter, to be attached to the piano for transposing and recording music being played, has been invented.

Radio Fan Explains Lure of Latest Craze

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23. — "Just what is the lure of radio?" asks the non-enthusiast to whom radio is "just another craze."

"Radio is like fishing" is the explanation offered by one radio fan during a smoking-car discussion on a suburban train here. "I get all the old thrill of that sport from this pastime. The little fish are the local radio broadcasting stations; the big ones, those farther off. The bigger the fish you go after the more expensive the tackle.

"To me each station I 'land' is a 'bite,' and the 'gameness' of the 'fish' is the amount of difficulty one has in keeping out interference. A group of us who have radio sets have a 'radio fishing club,' and we each keep score of the 'fish' we land and tally up at the end of the week.

"The distant stations—the big fish—give one all the thrill to keep them 'hooked' that a large fish would, for there is always a fight with them to keep them 'on the line.' There is static interference and commercial wireless telegraphy to aid them in 'escaping' from you. I get just as much thrill some nights with my set as I do in the summer with rod and reel."

Hawaiian Sugar Firm Has New Output Record

HONOLULU, Feb. 23.—With a total output of 20,049 tons of raw sugar, the Hawaian Agricultural Company set a new record in the last year for its plantations. Production was 2,011 tons greater than in 1915, when the previous record was established. No dividends were paid by the company for the last year and a half because of previous heavy losses.

Mail Service Flyers Are Peace Time Aces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. — Aviation "aces" did not become extinct with the termination of the World War.

The Postoffice Department boasts of several "aces" today. The ace of pilots, in respect to the number of miles flown in the Air Mail Service, is J. H. Knight, of Omaha, Neb., who, according to the official records, has flown 146,729 miles.

Closely pressing him for honors is E. G. Leonhardt, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has covered 142,756 miles in transporting mails. Both pilots are veterans in the trans-continental service of the Air Mail Service. Knight became a pilot on June 25, 1919, and Leonhardt joined the service on September 19, 1919.

Knight flies the Central Division route from Iowa City to Rock Springs, Wyoming, and Leonhardt wings his way over mountains and plains on the Eastern Division from New York to Iowa City. Both fliers saw service with the American Expeditionary Forces during the war.

Propose to Abandon Canal of Doubtful Use

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 23. —A canal maintained by the state solely for the use of two sand boats!

That's the Black River Canal, running from Rome to Carthage. Its abandonment is sought in a measure before the State Legislature. The canal channel is clogged up with sand and refuse from lack of use, and, it is claimed, is merely a sporting rendezvous for pollywogs and bullfrogs.

DENIES REPORTS DE VALERA JAILED

President of Dail Eireann Says Republican Chief Still at Large

By DANIEL O'CONNELL
For International News Service

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—A widespread report that Eamonn de Valera, chief of the Irish republicans, and Liam Lynch, chief of staff of the Irish irregular army, had been arrested at Drumcondra, was denied by President William T. Cosgrave, of the Dail Eireann today.

According to the report, five of the main republican chiefs were arrested at Drumcondra during a meeting of the "army council" of the irregulars.

Give Out Denial

At first the Free State authorities were reticent, refusing to discuss the report that de Valera had been arrested, but upon receipt of official advices from Drumcondra they said it was without truth.

It was officially admitted that Sean Fitzpatrick, a republican army officer, and four other irregular chiefs, were captured by Free Staters.

Fitzpatrick was acting commander of the republican irregulars in the Dublin district.

The Free State commandant said that de Valera was still at large.
